Over the Spring 2021 academic year, Concordia University faculty of nurses, nurse practitioners, pharmacists, and physician assistants, and physicians safely and effectively administered more than 3,000 doses of Pfizer COVID-19 vaccine. As a continuation of this work, Concordia will offer the Pfizer vaccine on an on-demand basis Mondays through Thursdays at a time that is convenient for patients.

“Our healthcare staff are privileged to serve the community as a COVID-19 Pfizer vaccine provider and excited to continue to contribute to public health as we work to stay ahead of COVID-19 and its variants,” said Dr. Mike Brown, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs at the Concordia University School of Pharmacy.

Getting vaccinated is as important as ever, because all available COVID-19 vaccines are effective at preventing COVID-19 disease, including emerging strains of the virus. Getting vaccinated greatly reduces the risk of hospitalization and death, and eliminates the need for quarantine after exposure in most cases. Many work places, businesses, and schools are also waiving mask and social distancing requirements with documentation of vaccination.
